Save Your Family

Noah got his family on the ark. Joshua was determined that his family would “serve the Lord.” Eunice gave her son Timothy the gift of faith. It’s our turn.

We can, we must, and with God’s help, we will save our children. Make saving yourself and then your children, your highest priority. Be an example to your children that’s worth imitating. Have a faith that is contagious to all in your house.

Be the all that separates your children from the devil who stalks them. Pray with your family. Talk to God about your children and talk to your children about God. Worship with your children. Do this “every time the church doors are open” and one day you’ll be in heaven with your children and your children’s children.

Play with your children. Laugh with them daily. Eat with your children at the same table at the same time. Talk to your children. Listen. Turn the television off. Silence the cell phone. Have a “no-texting” zone around the dinner table.

Teach them that modesty is a virtue, that hard work is healthy, that beauty fades, that character counts, that pouting is a waste of time, that “fitting in” is overrated, that alcohol destroys, that purity is a great prize, that debt is bad.

Never let your children hear you bash the church, or take your Lord’s name in vain. Always be heard praising God and others. Be your children’s biggest fan, their first teacher, their most significant influence.

Know where your children are. Know who they are with. Know their school teachers and the Bible school teachers. Know what homework they need to do. Know what’s under their bed and on their computer. Know their fears, their dreams, their favorite songs, movies, foods and places to be.

Catch your children doing good. Say no as needed. Say yes to whatever is good. Be a parent not a “best buddy.” Discipline your children with the goal of teaching self-discipline. Don’t say it unless you mean it. Be genuine. Don’t do anything you wouldn’t want your children to do.

Your children and mine deserve our best effort. Let’s give it to them.
